RECONVERSION FOR DISTILLERS

It will be noted with raised eyebrows by many other enterprises in this country asking permission to switch over temporarily to civilian production that whisky distillers are first to get a major break.

The permission their industry has obtained to resume whisky making during August on a scale giving them the equivalent of three months of a normal year's output is limited reconversion, but on a scale so much greater than anything in sight for the ordinary run of industry that there is no comparison.

Aside from explaining that relief for distillers is made possible by easing of the industrial alcohol situation, chiefly the synthetic rubber program, WPB has made no comprehensive explanation of its decision. That is, it has not explained whether the limited reconversion it is authorizing for whisky distillers represents a policy for civilian production in general, or whether it is dictated by the peculiar situation of the distilling industry.

That situation's peculiarity consists, of course, in the relation between taxation and public demand for whisky. The tax on whisky was never higher, and the demand never was greater, a combination of circumstances which probably makes it a lot easier to give the distilling industry a green light than to perform the same favor for, say, the infant diaper industry, also pinched by a rising demand and a falling supply—but not in a position to produce huge sums of revenue for the government.

THREE YEARS WITH A MAD BEAR

Whatever special observance Hitler and his busy companions may remember to make on the third anniversary of their greatest mistake should be added as a postscript to "Three Years With A Mad Bear"—the little volume of confessions and memoirs some Nazi will be sure to write for the post-war book market.

"Mein Kampf," Hitler's great contribution to modern literature, reveals that Russia and Russian Communism were, next to the Jews, his pet phobia. It also reveals that he was smart enough to realize if he yielded to it without sewing up Germany's western front first, Germany would be in trouble. Hitler was right.

Presumably, greed for Russian resources and the German thought that Russia might be defeated before Germany turned back to chew up the British at the failure of the super-race, prevailed over Hitler's caution. In any event, he gave the order to attack Russia three years ago, thereby sealing his doom.

The measure of events since then is the present fact that no one expects Germany to do anything on its eastern front this year, except fall back whenever Russia decides the time has come again to resume its offensive. The race for Berlin is from two directions. The Allies have been reaching it at will with their bombers, but it's still an even bet the Russians may reach it first with their armies. At least Hitler and his military geniuses have plenty to think about three years after they made their big mistake.

CAPT. LYTTELTON'S HALF-TRUTH

The fact is, of course, that Capt. Lyttelton's remark about the United States forcing Japan into the war is those half-truths depending on what the speaker means for their full interpretation.

The United States did force Japan into the war, in the sense that it took a position against a Japanese policy of conquest of everything it wanted in the Pacific and Asiatic areas.

American policy forced Japan to resort to violence in the same way that society's stand on burglary forces a burglar to use violence to get what he has decided to take.

As long as Japan remained committed to aggression, it was in conflict with the United States. This government's aim, up to Pearl Harbor, was to give Japan a chance to retreat from aggression without loss of face, but it turned out that the Japanese were in no mood to retreat. They launched the attack on Pearl Harbor, and the war was on. Eventually, they would have launched it somewhere else—eventually, unless they reversed direction, they had to fight the United States—but the point is that they opened the fighting.

If Capt. Lyttelton had said what he meant, he wouldn't have given our Anglophiles a chance to engage in their savage pastime of biting chunks out of the British lion's tail.

NAVAL BATTLES

While a clear picture of what has been happening in the Pacific is being awaited, it may help to remember that after Jutland, the great naval battle of World War I, it required the unrelenting efforts of naval experts and historians over a period of years merely to catalogue the events of that momentous clash.

By hindsight when the war was over—Jutland occurred on May 31, 1916—it could be said unequivocally that the British won; i. e., they won the war. But at the time the outcome of the clash was everything but clear. Losses were heavy on both sides and, strangely enough, were heavier on the winner's side. The difference was that the British could stand them, under the circumstances, and the Germans couldn't.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, June 24

MANY OF THE energies and ambitions are under excellent stimuli for quick achievement, especially in all pertaining to writings, publications, publicity and promotional enterprises, with travel, agencies and communications greatly encouraged. It should be a propitious time for concentrating the energies with force and precision despite trivial setbacks or obstacles. These may be vanquished by shrewd and determined effort. Finances should expand, litigation and all professional matters should thrive, with social and domestic activities flourishing, but beware intrigues.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a keenly lively and progressive year, with much stirring in the social, domestic and professional life, in spite of small worries, trifling setbacks and delays. Writings of all kinds should be under excellent stimuli, publications, advertising, promotions, travel, agencies are quickly advanced, while litigation and credit are safe and sound. In social or domestic affairs there may be celebrations, with proclivities to lavishness.

A child born on this day may have great versatility, with creative ability in writing, publishing, advertising, and all professions. Its personal life should be happy and congenial, but with a tendency to lavish outlay.

"Persona Non Grata"

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Telling a minister or an ambassador that he is "persona non grata" is just the diplomatic way of saying, "Here's your hat. If you hurry, you can catch the first boat."

That's what happened in the case of Minister Hjalmar Procope of Finland.

The real reasons behind it probably won't be known until after the war, unless the furor raised by the order here in some circles causes the State department or the White House to explain more fully. The given reason was "actions inimical to the interests of the United States."

No one ever doubted that Mr. Procope is by birth and national inheritance an anti-Russian; but on several occasions during the first phase of the Russo-Finnish war and the present one, his declaration of anti-Russian feeling were a good deal milder than the expressions many of our members of Congress and others are uttering publicly.

No one could doubt either his great devotion and loyalty to Finland. If that led him into any diplomatic indiscretions, it could certainly be understood, even if it could not be condoned by a nation at war with the Nazis, with whom Finland is an ally against Russia and England.

State department officials, checking back through records and memories for at least 15 years, couldn't find any similar case, but handing a diplomat his hat in just this manner is among the first diplomatic records of our relationship with other nations.

It was President Washington himself who handed Citizen Genet his beret and told him to run along right away back to France. The good citizen it seems had been guilty of trying to stir up the youthful United States against England.

There was also the Sackville-West case in the 1880's where that worthy of the British embassy was sent packing for writing a letter to a naturalized Britisher here suggesting that Cleveland's election would be more favorable to Great Britain than Benjamin Harrison's.

And the records are full of cases where minor consular or diplomatic officials were invited to go home—our own as well as those of other nations.

The case of Mr. Procope probably will turn out to be no more than diplomatic maneuvering in our greater war strategy, but whether it is or isn't, he and his charming English wife undoubtedly will have a lot of friends to come back to when it's all over.

Theories On the Lack of Pep

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
FASHIONS CHANGE in the thinking of that portion of the general public so afflicted as to what is the cause of their lack of pep. I can remember long ago before any of these here was when I was just beginning to penetrate the mysteries of the science of medicine that it was very orthodox not only for the laity but in the best scientific circles to ascribe it to chronic constipation.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Then the X-ray came along and threw some chilling doubts on the general theory, so that the ultra-scientific could no longer hold it. Nowadays after going through periods in which uric acid, allergy and upset endocrines were given as the cause, public opinion has generally settled on the idea that lack of pep is due to lack of concentrated vitamins.

There are a few stubborn specimens, however, who cling to the old idea that constipation is the root of all evil and for their sakes the thesis is worth debating today.

Correct Meaning

The average man would repudiate with scorn the challenge that he did not know the correct meaning of constipation. But such might be the case. The conventional arrangement of regular diurnal defecation is a social convenience rather than a law of nature. Savage man in a state of Nature responds to the stimulus initiated in the movements of his intestine by the presence of a meal in the stomach and evacuates after each meal. But the meals may be quite a long ways apart.

There is an oft-quoted experience of an eminent physician one of whose patients replied to a question that his bowels were regular although further inquiry proved he went once every other Monday.

The X-ray has taught us a great deal about the true physiology of the average case of constipation and ruined some of the older notions. If a barium meal is followed through the digestive tract of a constipated person it will be seen in four out of five instances to pass out of the stomach and through the small intestine at exactly the same rate as that of a normal control. After every part of a meal has left the small intestine and entered the large intestine, it normally requires about sixteen hours for it to traverse the entire length and come to rest in the sigmoid colon, and this schedule is no different in four out of five self-styled constipated individuals than in normal ones.

Normal Individual

The normal individual evacuates the daily accumulation in the lower bowel sometime between breakfast and noon. Here, and here only, does the constipated individual differ. The residue of his meal remains in the lower part of the large bowel sometimes for days. At that point, and at that point only, does the much advertised stasis of constipation occur.

This explanation clears up several widely held misconceptions about constipation. First it knocks out the absorption of poison idea. Absorption does not occur from the lower part of the large bowel where the residue rests in a constipated individual. The small intestine from which most absorption occurs is just as empty most of the time in the constipated individual as in the normal. The feeling of toxicity of poisoning that the constipated individual has is largely due to the cathartic habit.

Secondly, this knowledge of the real physiology of constipation knocks out the idea of the efficiency of cathartics entirely. Why should a cathartic be employed to stir up all the 25 feet of the entire intestine for the sole purpose of emptying the last few inches of that tube. An enema will do it more efficiently. The cathartic just irritates and rolls up all the insides and gives the patient that feeling of discomfort that is interpreted as meaning absorption of sewage.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. B. C.—Is walking harmful for one that has high blood pressure?

Answer:—Moderate exercise is beneficial for a person with high blood pressure, provided complications of heart or kidney do not contraindicate. Walking is the best form of moderate exercise.

G. C.—A woman 70 years of age has a bad itching in her back and arms. What would you advise?

Answer: The winter itching of old people usually means too much bathing. Leave off the soap and water. Get plenty of fresh vegetables.

M. D.—Would it be dangerous for a woman of 63 years with high blood pressure and diabetes to go on a four hour airplane trip to see her son who is going overseas?
Answer: I don't think so, but what the dickens—she'll go anyway.

A. E. S.—Can sugar be in the blood as well as in the urine? Is it more dangerous in the blood?

Answer: There is always a certain amount of sugar in the blood. The blood sugar always rises before the urine sugar appears.

F. H. J.—I have read an article by a doctor who stated that the average life of a person after starting to take thyroid extract is 30 years.

Answer: There is no rule as to how long thyroid extract can be taken. Most people who need it are about 45 years of age when they begin to need it, so thirty years about carries them to their expectancy.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening.

235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Embarrassed Chief

LORAIN—Even an old story's funny when the joke's on a police chief.

Police Chief H. J. Miller flagged down a motorist and asked him to push "Jenny," the village police car, to a repair station.

It probably was just as well with Miller that it was not until after the obliging stranger had sped away that he discovered he'd forgotten to turn the ignition key.

PIN-WORMS

Now can be Beaten!

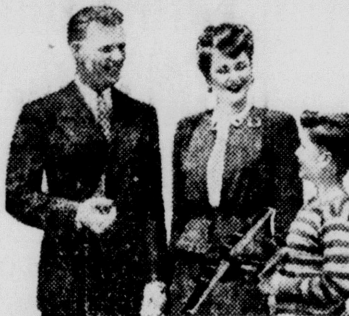

The miseries of Pin-Worms have been known for centuries, and many doctors have sought a way to deal with this dreadful pest that lives and grows inside the human body.

Today, thanks to an important scientific discovery, a new and highly effective treatment is being hailed by medical authorities. It is based on a remarkable drug known as gentian violet. This drug is the vital element in P-W, the new Pin-Worm tablet developed by the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son, America's leading specialists in worm medicines.

P-W makes it unnecessary for you or your child to suffer in silence with the embarrassing rectal itch caused by Pin-Worms, or to take chances on the real distress they often create. The small, easy-to-take P-W tablets act in a special way to destroy Pin-Worms.

So watch for possible warning signs such as: itching seat and nose, uneasy stomach, bed-wetting, nervous fidgeting. If you suspect Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for a package of P-W and follow the simple directions carefully.

It is easy to remember: P-W for Pin-Worms!

ADVERTISING PULLS PAINTER FROM JAIL
KINGSFORD, Tenn.—Less than an hour after the edition hit the street, the police station telephone started to ring steadily. A house painter in jail had advertised he would do a $15 paint job for $10, the amount between him and freedom.

By 6 p. m. he was free—and the desk sergeant reported 200 calls for the prisoner and a desire to shoot the reporter who'd taken the prisoner's ad.

IT TAKES A WOMAN EVERY TIME
ADVANCED HQ., SOUTH-EAST ASIA COMMAND, Kandy, Ceylon—Allied military masterminds were stymied recently by a roadblock set up by a mahout full of arak and his elephant, equally full of loyalty. Overcome by the local firewater distilled from coconut juice, the mahout fell off the elephant and lay on the roadside. When a driver happened along and tried to help him, the elephant bared its tusks, raised its trunk and made ready for a frontal attack. The driver retreated. Brass hats, stretching away in an increasing vehicular queue behind the barrier, finally sent for the mahout's wife. She showed up an hour later, got the column moving, and led her husband away by the ear. The elephant tagged on behind.

FICKLE LADY LUCK CHANGED IN TIME
GEN. MONTGOMERY'S COMMAND Post, France—Pvt. Carl Umholtz of Sunbury, Tenn., thought bad luck was riding with him on the invasion voyage to France because he lost all but two 20-franc notes of the invasion money given each soldier. His luck changed, however, the moment he touched shore.

An 88 shell exploded ten feet away and knocked Umholtz and his buddies flat. After Umholtz recovered consciousness, he turned over the man next to him; he was dead. Umholtz noted something in his knuckle glint in the sun. It was a small piece of shrapnel, just enough for a good-sized souvenir.

HE WANTED A SKIRT WITHOUT TRIMMINGS

FORT MORGAN, Cal.—In a recent letter to his wife, Lt. Robert Wankelman, B-24 pilot in the Pacific, told how a friend had difficulties buying a grass skirt as a memento. The salesman was the village chief who held title to the native girls who were sold as wives. The airman found the skirt he wanted and offered the chief a half-pound ($1.60) for it. The chief took the money and gave him the skirt—and the girl who wore it. The souvenir-seeker had a tough time explaining he just wanted the skirt—not a wife.

EXHIBIT K-9 DOGS AT CLUB MEETING

Approximately 250 persons witnessed the K-9 dog demonstration presented by Dewey Satterfield of Cleveland and sponsored by the Columbiana County Kennel club Wednesday evening at Centennial park.

Satterfield, who originated the "Dogs for Defense" program, exhibited his two dogs, a Doberman pinscher and a Staffordshire terrier, in a demonstration of the use of dogs in attack, protective, and cavalry work. A question period followed the program.

At a picnic supper held by Kennel club members and their families earlier in the evening, the following trustees were elected: Carl Willman for three years; W. Edmund Peters, two years; and Pat Driscoll, one year.

The next meeting of the club will be held late in July.

Mail Cargoes Via Rockets Predicted For Use After War

(By United Press)
MANSFIELD—The current generation will see shipments of mail and express by rockets zooming through space at 120 miles per minute in the postwar future, according to G. E. Pendray, assistant to the president of Westinghouse Electric Mfg. Co.

Pendray, a founder and former president of the American Rocket Society, also predicted distant possibilities of rocket transportation for humans at 1,500 mph as indicated by advances in present experiments.

The first peacetime use of rockets, Pendray said, will be unspectacular, such as assisting the take-off of heavily loaded planes, making it possible to increase the plane load 50 per cent.

The thought of travel in a rocket, however, still borders on the fantastic side, Pendray admitted. The greatest problem of human travel would be solving the dangerous effects on the human body of rapid acceleration and deceleration.

As a war weapon, there no longer is anything fantastic about rocket power. The bazooka and the Russian Katusha knock tanks out of battle while the jet propulsion motor, close kin to the rocket, is used by the Allies as a power plant for fighter planes.

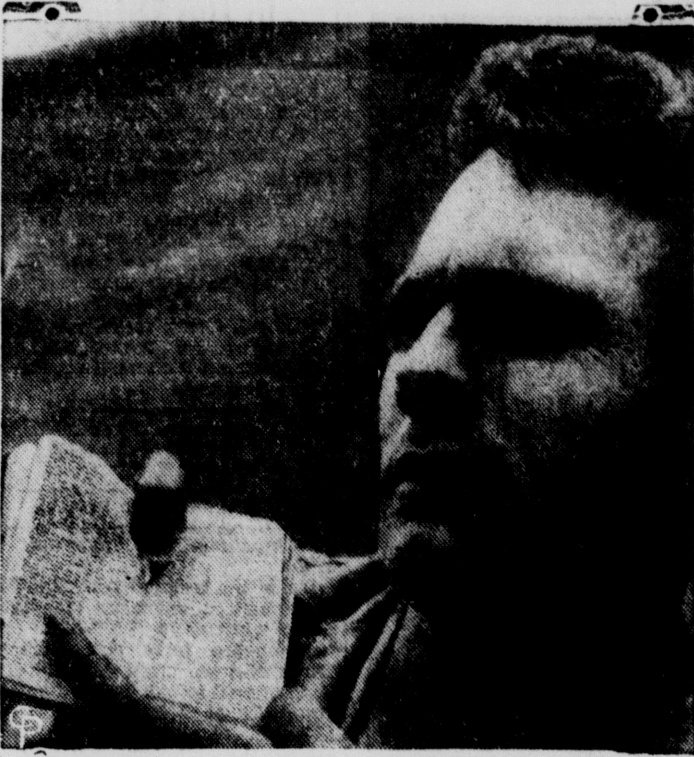

"For war planes and transports, we are now building gasoline engines of 2,000 horsepower or more," he said. "But these power plants are rapidly approaching their maximum practical size."

The gas turbine is being improved so rapidly, Pendray said, that in a few years we may see it driving planes, locomotives and electric generators. The turbine, a multi-bladed "windmill" driven by a blast of hot, rapidly-expanding gases created by burning oil or gasoline, may eventually replace the conventional reciprocating gasoline engines in large airplanes, he explained.

Rockets would be invaluable for weather predictions, he said. Equipped with proper recording instruments, one shot into the fair would provide weather experts with correct data for forecasts two weeks in advance instead of the present 24 hours.

Although the Cherokee Indian boundary in North Carolina is a private corporation chartered by the State of North Carolina, recent federal court decisions classify it as a reservation in the same sense as lands granted to Western tribes.

Outing Held By Sorority Last Evening

The Beta Sigma Phi sorority met last night at the home of Mrs. J. C. Potto, Depot rd., for a picnic supper.

During the program, Miss Carmen McNicol gave a talk on prose and poetry, and Mrs. Martin Roth spoke on "Thinking". Mrs. Oren Naragon, program chairman, asked some review questions from the study book.

The next meeting July 27 will be held at the Salem Country club.

Reception and Shower Is Held for Couple

A reception and shower was given at the Salem Country club Wednesday evening honoring Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Sullivan, who were married Thursday, June 15, in the rectory of St. Aloysius church in East Liverpool. Rev. Fr. Francis Lavery officiated at the ceremony.

The couple, who are making their home at 976 S. Lincoln ave., were presented many gifts. Refreshments were served.

The bride is the former Irene Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Schmidt of R. D. 2, Salem. Mr. Sullivan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Sullivan, Leetonia.

CHERBOURG

The broadcast was recorded by CES.

Inside the besieged port, the German garrison stood up stubbornly under yesterday's 1,000-plane assault on the forts and pillboxes comprising the city's defenses. The U. S. ground troops had to fight for every inch of their advance.

Small gains were registered around the port itself, but progress was made on both the eastern and western sides of the peninsula.

Only slight German resistance was reported by American troops which cut off the eastern tip of the peninsula by capturing the road junction of St. Pierre Eglise and then driving two miles westward and taking Carnesville within sight of the sea.

15,000 Prisoners Taken

A report from the 21st Army group headquarters said this advance provided "strong indications" the Germans had abandoned that tip of the peninsula despite strong fortifications in the St. Vaast La Hougue area on the eastern coast.

On the western tip of the peninsula, the Americans went forward in the area of Beaumont Hague against scattered resistance, cutting off whatever Germans are in that area.

Allied bombers and fighters attacked German gunposts and barracks on Alderney, one of the channel isles only seven miles west of the tip of Cap De La Hague. This indicated some of the trapped Germans might be attempting to flee there.

The Allied prisoner bag was described at supreme headquarters as "well over" the 15,000 announced a few days ago for the period since the June 6 landings.

Bloody hand-to-hand fighting for Cherbourg was matched over two-thirds of France where the French underground is striking at the Germans on a dozen "inner fronts," tying up "several German divisions" in combat, a special communique from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters reported.

The French patriots, the Supreme command announced, have blocked movement of German troops against the bridgehead, have fought several pitched battles and even have occupied several towns in various parts of France.

Salvage Officials Eye House Made from Paper

PIGEON COVE, Mass.—Each time they pass, collectors in the paper salvage drive cast longing glances at the former home of E. F. Sten-man.

The house, together with all its furnishings, is constructed of paper. For several years after he built the unique structure in 1922, Sten-man and his family lived in the paper house. Then he built a wooden house close by and supported his family with the admission charged tourists who came from all parts of the world to view his handiwork.

Stenman died two years ago at the age of 68 without revealing the secret of the special fluid which he invented to preserve the old newspapers with which he built the house.

Walls of the house, which contain 100,000 newspapers, are 215 sheets thick.

world wide economic stability to obtain a high level of employment.

The 400 word declaration contained no outright pledge to use military power to curb aggression. It suggested that an international organization "develop effective cooperative means to direct peace forces" toward that objective.

Republican Chairman Harrison E. Spangler released the official convention program with less entertainment and fewer set speeches indicated. He predicted the presidential nominee will be chosen by Wednesday night—thus reiterating his forecast that there'll be no deadlock.

The official program answered a question, which had gone undecided by the arrangement committee for several days, as to whether former President Herbert Hoover or Rep. Clare Boothe Luce of Connecticut would speak first before the convention Tuesday, both being booked to appear in a radio period beginning at 9 p. m. The lady from Connecticut will follow the former president.

Bricker On Radio

CHICAGO, June 23—Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio will make three more talks, two on nation-wide radio hookups, before the Republican national convention opens Monday.

Tonight the candidate for the GOP presidential nomination will talk on NBC from 11:15 to 11:30 (EWT). Saturday he will talk before the Chicago Bricker-For-President committee in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel at 8:15 p. m., and at 11:45 p. m. (EWT) he will go on the Columbia network for another 15-minute address.

Japan's Slash At China And Its Meaning

BY JAMES D. WHITE

WASHINGTON—From north and south, the Japanese are poking at a Chinese hornet's nest. It's the unconquered 350-mile stretch of the railway between Hankow in central China and Canton in the south.

The Chinese say the Japanese army has thrown 100,000 troops into the Changsha campaign down through central China's ricebowl district. Other Japanese forces are pushing up from Canton, and have reached the town of Fengsun 30 miles above Canton. Their strength here is not given.

Drives On Changsha

On three previous occasions the Japanese have tried to take Changsha, and three times China's General Hsueh Yueh outwitted and outmaneuvered them. He commands that front today.

But now the Japanese look like they are going farther than Changsha. They may have more than one reason for trying now to do what they have never tried before. That is, to bite off a huge chunk of southeastern China by capturing the Canton-Hankow railway.

There's the usual summer looting—now a fixed custom with the Japanese army in China. Then there's the need Japan has for the railway itself. If they could get it, and keep it going, it would help their shipping problem, which grows bigger as American planes harass their shipping lanes through the China Sea.

U. S. Bases In Danger

Next, capture of the line would pinch off any American air bases in eastern China—if there are such bases. Japanese propagandists keep talking about advanced American bases within a hundred miles or so of the coast—at such places as Yushan, Kienow and Chuchow (Lishui). One Japanese military spokesman mentioned "dozens" of such bases.

Furthermore, if the Canton-Hankow line were captured, the Japanese would be better able to defend the China coast when the times comes for American forces to land there. The Japanese appear to have taken Admiral Nimitz's remark about China coast bases very seriously.

A Difficult Campaign

Finally, the Japanese probably hope to catch sizeable Chinese forces between their northern and southern drives. Knowing the Chinese have lighter and fewer arms, they may hope to destroy them between the jaws of their twin offensive.

However, in spite of China's scarcities, this Japanese campaign may turn out to be one of the most difficult in seven years of warfare in China.

In the north, the Japanese may have fairly easy going as far south as Hengchow, a hundred miles south of Changsha. They would be fighting up the broad but narrowing valley of the Siang river. South of Hengchow the country becomes mountainous. The railway goes through more than 35 tunnels as it winds up through narrow valleys, across rough divides, and down through more valleys to the south.

There is a stretch of about 50 miles across the Hunan-Kuangtung provincial border, between the towns of Chenchow and Lokchang, where the terrain is fantastically hilly. The mountains tower in dizzying crags and monoliths which westerners see only in Chinese paintings.

Sub-Tropical Climate

South of the Hunan border, the climate is humid and sub-tropical. Dense undergrowth and bamboo

SCENE OF NEW PACIFIC INVASION

THIS AERIAL VIEW of Saipan Island, made during a 7th AAF bombing mission, covers 26 miles and gives a clear picture of the terrain over which our troops are fighting to wrest the Pacific base from the Japs. (International Soundphoto) thickets join with irregular forest areas to furnish excellent cover for defense.

Chinese military officials here say they are confident that even if the Japanese can conquer the entire railway—and they by no means concede that it can be done except at great cost—they will not be able to use it.

The entire line would be subject to Allied air attack. The countless defiles linking the railway with the irregular mountains of the hinterland on both sides would expose it to constant counteraction by Chinese troops.

This mountainous Hunan-Kuangtung country is inhabited by people who for six years staved off

Japanese invasion successfully. The lay of the land is quite different from the arid plains of the north, where the Japanese have had their best luck in conquering and holding long supply lines.

NAVY GROOMS ENLISTED MEN

Ambitious Young Sailors Get Increasing Chances For Commissions

(By United Press) WASHINGTON — Young Navy enlisted men with initiative and ambition are going to have an increasing chance for commissions.

A recent poll of the percentage of enlisted men who have become officers since Dec. 7, 1941, shows that they comprise nearly 45 per cent of the total number of men commissioned. Of these, 20 per cent had seen previous duty either afloat or ashore and the remaining 25 per cent were taken from civil life as enlisted men and training to become officers.

Since the beginning of the war, more and more enlisted men have been appointed as warrant or commissioned officers, until now the Navy plans to draw "almost wholly" upon service sources for its officers. In the first rapid expansion of the wartime Navy, there was necessarily a limitation on the number of qualified enlisted men who could be appointed to officer status. The reason for this policy was that the chief petty officers are the keystone of organization aboard Navy ships. Their services in the intermediate level of command were vital to the successful operation of the forces afloat and thus the qualified men had to be restricted in order not to strip the ships.

Postwar Opportunities
However, that situation has now been stabilized to a point where the only officers still taken from civilian life will be specialists, such as doctors, dentists, and chaplains, and young men as aviation cadets. All the rest will come on the whole from the ranks.

In the Navy of the postwar world, which will undoubtedly be a far larger one than ever before in U. S. history, there will be plenty of opportunities for naval careers for enlisted men as officers.

A great many officers in the naval reserve will be mustered out at the end of the war and many of those billets will require filling. The Naval Academy will be unable to supply the large amount of officers to fill these places.

Credit For Sea Duty
The direct appointments from the ranks are of two types—permanent and temporary. For temporary appointments, the only requirements are that a man has worked up to first class petty officer or above; that his record of service, civilian background and demonstrated abilities for leadership recommend him for appointment to officer status. There are no educational requirements.

The permanent appointments, however, which will apply to the future navy, are comparable to those of civilian appointees of today, except that a man who has seen active service aboard ship is given an advantage over the civilian appointee. The minimum educational requirements is two years of college, but a man can make up the additional years since the Navy recognizes three months sea duty as equivalent to a semester of college work.

However, the Navy recognizes the value of officers who have "worked their way up" from enlisted ranks and the "continuing" policy of the Navy is to provide for its enlisted personnel every opportunity and incentive to become commissioned officers in the Naval service.

Amusement Park Gives Balloons To Sick Child

AKRON — Mr. and Mrs. Paul Selby of Corning, N. Y., sent a rush call to their Akron friends for help in filling a doctor's prescription. The doctor had said their small daughter should have rubber balloons to blow up as a lung exercise while she recovered from pneumonia.

Friends, even in the rubber city, were at a loss to find the scarce toys, until they remembered a booth at a local amusement center where balloons were used as dart targets. The park management cooperated and the doctor's orders were obeyed.

A cow in a good pasture will eat 150 pounds of green herbage and produce 40 pounds of milk without losing weight.

News and Views, Briefly On What's Going On In Capital

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Congress gave its attention today to the few money matters remaining on its urgent calendar, and got ready to turn out the lights in the capitol and head for the conventions.

The recess will be until Aug. 1 and either the majority or minority leader of either house can demand a recall in the event of an "emergency."

TURNABOUT

President Roosevelt apparently has rolled out the welcome mat for Sen. George, Georgia Democrat whose defeat he sought to bring about six years ago. The President is reported to have been "very pleased" to hear that George's chances of re-election this year are good. Mr. observers saw in the President's attitude a move to quiet party complaints down south.

LIBERTY SHIP

The Liberty ship—the truckhorse of the sea—has won the praise of the senate's War Investigating committee but the senators sharply score its use as a troop carrier or hospital ship. In a report on merchant shipping the committee discounts to some extent the damage sustained by cracking, but it criticizes the failure to build adequate troop carriers of other types and opposes the substitution of Liberty ships for this purpose.

FAIRFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller, Columbus-Middleton road, held "open house" from 7 to 10 p. m. Saturday in observance of their silver wedding anniversary. A daughter, Shirley, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Zeigler, assisted. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Rupert of New Waterford and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Martin were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Leshner of Washingtonville were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wisler, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Rowe attended a coverdish dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Rowe of New Albany, Sunday evening honoring the second birthday anniversary of their daughter, Sally Ann.

Leland Lipp of New Buffalo and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lutsch and children were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Forney, Sunday.

BRIDGEPORT INTRODUCES FIRST HELICOPTER LINE

HELICOPTERS ARE BEING PRODUCED in quantity for the U. S. Army Air Forces at the Bridgeport, Conn., plant of the Sikorsky Aircraft division of United Aircraft corporation. In this first released photo of the main production floor, the rear section of the R-4B helicopter fuselage moves down the line on the left to meet the front sections in the center of the building. After the two sections are joined and the engine installed, the fuselage moves down the final assembly line at the right and out through the paint shop. (International)

Cadet Nurses Corps, Now 100,000 Strong, Prepares To Mark First Birthday July 1

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Woman's Editor

The baby of America's women's services will have one candle on its birthday cake July 1—but it's a mammoth cake, in fitting tribute to nearly 100,000 members of the U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps.

Organized July 1, 1943, the Cadet Nurse corps in one year has outstripped enrollment in any of the other women's services, as girls from villages and cities, farms and towns all over America rushed to answer the call.

Some of the success of the Cadet Nurse recruitment program is credited to the uniform—trim gray flannel for winter, gray and white striped seersucker for summer, with dashing red epaulets and silver buttons. The government points out these other inducements:

- 1—Training for a career.
- 2—A lifetime education—free.
- 3—An accelerated period of training.
- 4—An attractive uniform for optional wear.
- 5—A paid nursing assignment earlier.
- 6—National identification with war services.

7—Girls can enter at the ages of 17 and 18, younger than they can enlist in any of the military services.

8—They serve while they learn. In hospitals throughout the nation these alert, efficient young Cadet Nurses are training to relieve more highly trained nurses for duty with the Army or Navy, or for more highly specialized civilian work.

The shortage of nurses has been one of the gravest problems faced on the U. S. home front since the war. Enrollment of Cadet Nurses already has received the situation greatly, and is expected to continue in increasing effectiveness.

In the first year, the Cadet Nurse corps far surpassed the quota of 65,000 asked by Uncle Sam. The figure is now set at 115,000, and more than 95,000 girls already are wearing the gray and silver uniforms.

Girls of 17 or 18, preferably not over 35, are eligible to enter. Entrance requirements, vary with schools of nursing, but usually high school graduation is adequate.

Tuition from the date of registration until graduation is paid, and living expenses provided. The smart uniforms also are issued free to the students, who in addition are paid an allowance of $15 per month as Pre-Cadets, $20 per month as Junior Cadets, and $30 per month as Senior Cadets.

Under provisions of the Corps, the complete training can be finished in from 24 to 30 months.

Girls who wish information about the Cadet Nurse Corps may apply at their local hospitals or write to the United States Cadet Nurse Corps, Box 88, New York, N. Y. Applications for enrollment may be made to any school of nursing participating in the program.)

Fat and Oil Products Gain 275,000,000 Pounds

WASHINGTON — United States processors of vegetable and animal fats and oils turned out 11,300,000,000 pounds of products from domestic and imported raw materials in 1943, according to an article appearing in the June issue of "Domestic Commerce," monthly publication of the Department of Commerce.

This was a gain of 275,000,000 pounds over the year before. Total production in 1944 is expected to reach 11,700,000,000 pounds. This unprecedented production of fat and oil products indicates that post war domestic and foreign trade in these products will probably be substantially above prewar levels, declares Charles E. Lund, Chief of the Fats and Oils Unit, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

This country has traditionally been a surplus producer of edible fats, and the present rate of lard and soybean production particularly demands export outlets in postwar years, when the emergency needs of occupied Europe have been filled," Mr. Lund said.

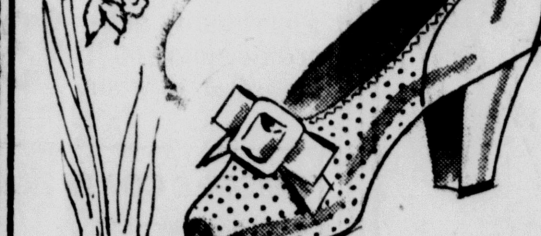

Cottonseed oil has remained one of the most dependable of our edible oils, he pointed out, while soybeans increased in importance until by 1942 the total passed Manchuria's peak production of this versatile oilseed and feed crop.

American Mothers Told of Their Role In Peace of Future

(By Associated Press) CLEVELAND, June 23.—American mothers who have given their sons in the fight for freedom will "have a voice at the roundtable of peace," the founder of the Blue Star Mothers of America said today at opening sessions of the third annual convention.

"At the peace table, when the war lords are called to task for their crimes, American motherhood will have a voice," Capt. George H. Maines of Flint, Mich., declared. "Already efforts are underway to present our plans for peace, our views and our hopes to the men who will represent the United States of America at that all-important conference."

Capt. Maines extolled the Blue Star Mothers as "the only—and I repeat—the only organization in this country, made up of mothers, which has no axe to grind, no polish to push, and above all, owes allegiance to no organization or faction other than the United States."

The national organizer promised the convention that so far as "I am concerned, this policy shall continue."

More than 500 delegates from 37 states registered for sessions today, Saturday and Sunday.

THE BONDS THAT HOLD Family Life Together.

The "old man" likes to kind of relax in the evening, to get his shoes off, his slippers on. The fellows in the opposite political camp are suckers, saps and dupes, and there's a lot more goods on 'em in the evening paper he's going to enjoy.

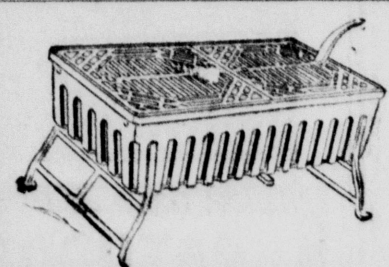

But Ma, somehow she takes things easier, politically speaking. In the evening, she'll let the world's affairs take care of themselves while she muses and does a little plain and fancy knitting.

Brother, the big seventeen year old lug, can't let world affairs alone. He thinks he knows something about military campaigns, and you can't argue with him, because he's got books and Atlases to prove his points.

Now Sis, bless her dainty heart, can't keep romance out of her head, that is, the kind you read about. Ed gave her a big box of candy, which she munches while reading of somebody else's heart throbs.

AND WHEN YOU NEED FURNITURE TO BRIGHTEN UP YOUR FAMILY CIRCLE. YOU'LL FIND US READY, AS USUAL, TO SERVE YOU.

Probationers Fear Postwar Delinquency

(By United Press)
CLEVELAND—The hussy with the false eyelashes and the heavily rouged cheeks may be a sweet-faced child when her face is washed, but as "Victory Girl" she constitutes a menace which is likely to get worse, not better, when the victory is won.

That was the consensus of juvenile authorities who gathered here for the 38th annual convention of the National Probation association.

The young lady with the green fingernails who turns out to be 15 instead of 20," according to Miss Judith J. Milliken, director of the Women's bureau of the Washington Metropolitan police department, "is often an enterprising and intelligent girl."

But, Miss Milliken added, such a girl got her patriotic motives mixed and set out from an unsatisfactory home to "see what it is all about."

Protest Blaming Youths
Probation officers at the convention were vehement in their protest against the assumption that the youngster is entirely to blame for the current rash of juvenile delinquency which has spread across the country.

"A large part of the conflict with youth," says Austin L. Porterfield, professor of sociology at Texas Christian university, "grows out of the peevishness, rejection, impatience, irresponsibility or criminal attitudes of those who complain."

"Parents, most everyone is willing to agree, are usually to blame for the unsettled home conditions and lack of innocent recreational facilities which drive children out into the streets, according to the Convention consensus."

But these conditions, added Porterfield, are not always due to the parents, but in many cases attributable to neighbors, school teachers, or perhaps even a policeman who becomes cross and irritable with noisy children when the temperature soars and the kids must play in the streets for lack of a supervised playground.

Jailed for 'Teasing'
These persons, according to Porterfield, are responsible for putting hundreds of children into jails or correctional institutions for offenses no more serious than teasing a pop-corn peddler or stealing peaches from a neighbor's tree.

Even the most seemingly-brazen of the wartime delinquents, the "victory girl," is often the "victim of exploitation" according to Miss Milliken. Here the pasty-faced night clerk in a cheap hotel may befriend the adventuresome young girl he meets in a skating rink.

"Through his good offices," she meets a number of young soldiers who cheerfully assume that any girls they meet at the place were there for the express purpose of brightening their furlough time in every way. And, without quite knowing how it happened, the girl is classified as a sexual offender by the police.

Urges Attention Today
But, warned the authorities, the problem is not one to be pushed into the postwar files. Today's problem, said Mark McCloskey, director of the Community War Services of the Federal Security agency, must be handled today, and in a more efficient manner than it has been thus far.

World war II, he said, has not produced new causes of delinquency but has turned the spotlight on old ones. "The nation was shocked," he added, "at results they should have expected from disrupted families, uprooted homes, loosening of social restraints, fewer children at school, more children at work with more money to spend."

McCloskey concluded that unless we learn to combat the home-front scourge of delinquency with our most concerted efforts, "the post-war plight of the kids may be even harder than that of returned veterans."

Household Hints
To give a satin smooth finish to makeup be sure to apply foundation cream in small dots over the entire surface of your face and smooth into the skin with your fingertips.

It takes about two cups of milk or two servings of dried beans, a generous serving of soybeans, or five slices of whole wheat bread to give as much protein as one gets in the usual serving of meat.

For nutritious meals try to use the following foods each day: Milk, meat, poultry, fish or eggs; green, yellow and other vegetables, fresh fruit, with citrus fruits often; whole grain, restored or enriched cereals.

The following herbs can be grown in a home herb garden: Basil, chive, mint, sweet marjoram, nasturtium, watercress, tarragon, caraway, parsley, celery anise, savory, dill, thyme, and sage.

To keep tummy flat and muscles firm sit on a backless stool holding midriff in tight, cross arms on chest, hook toes under living room sofa and go backward into an easy backbend. Rise without help to a sitting position.

A good food bath for aching feet can be made with bicarbonate of soda. Massage feet with oily base cream and then apply witch hazel.

A good suntan oil can be made by mixing one cup of vinegar, one cup of olive oil and one teaspoonful of iodine. Black tea can be substituted for iodine in case of allergy.

If nails discolor and stain from victory gardening, you can bleach them by mixing one ounce each of rose water and elder flower water with one dram of tartaric acid.

Movies, Comic Strips, Radios Have Affect In Naming Children

(By United Press)
STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—One of the most profound influences on the choice of first names for American children are the motion pictures, comic strips and radio programs, according to Dr. Clifford R. Adams, associate professor of education and psychology at Pennsylvania State college.

Karen, Dianne and Catherine were the top three choices of coeds. Dr. Adams found in a canvass of 400 Penn State students. Men students preferred names like Jeffrey, Stephen and Richard. Percival, Horace, Hepzibah and Matilda, on the other hand, were very much in disfavor.

"The names of well-known movie stars and radio personalities were rated highly by the students, whereas the names of ridiculed comic strip characters proved most unpopular," Dr. Adams reported.

In the order of their preference, the best-known feminine names were Karen, Dianne, Catherine, Linda, Ellen, Barbara, Gail, Carol, Margot and Kathleen. Males expressed a preference for names like Jeffrey, Stephen, Richard, Lawrence, Michael, Peter, David, Mark, Ronald and John.

Although not all were listed in the first 10, the old stand-bys like John, James, Kathleen, Helen and Mary rated surprisingly high.

Methodists Told of Rural Area Challenge

(By Associated Press)
LAKESIDE, June 23.—Adequate rural religious instruction provides a challenge to the Methodist church, asserts Dr. Paul E. Secrest, superintendent of the denomination's Youngstown district.

In an address last night before the Northeast Ohio conference of the Methodist church, Dr. Secrest noted "46 per cent of all Methodists live in rural areas . . . yet they have the poorest paid preachers and are the first to be left without ministers."

"Many pastors throughout the conference are taking added responsibility to serve these small churches," the superintendent declared in presenting the annual report of the district superintendents. "Means of financing adequate rural work is a challenge to methodism."

Rev. Roger Ortmyer of Madison predicted a post-war return of population to the rural areas, and in presenting the town and country commission report urged the conference to take steps to provide adequate religious facilities.

Dr. E. R. Brown, Cleveland district superintendent, was elected chairman of the conference board of hospitals and homes, succeeding Dr. Virgil Turner of Delaware, who resigned. Wayne McQueen and T. J. Slach of Cleveland, Schuyler Garth of Youngstown, J. W. Galbraith of Mansfield and J. R. Cheney of Akron were named to the board of trustees of Lakeside associations.

George R. Klein of Cleveland, Dr. Secrest, John Profser of Akron, H. W. Courtney of Elyria and Kenneth Pope of Canton were appointed Lakeside foundation trustees.

Regular Fellow
HEADQUARTERS, Panama Canal—Brig. Gen. William C. Christy walked into a Coast Artillery command post barbershop for a trim. The barber shook off a line of waiting enlisted men, making a ceremonial bow as he invited the general to take the chair. Christy declined with a smile. As he took his place at the end of the line, Corp. George R. Stephenson, of Suffern, N. Y., nonchalantly climbed into the chair and ordered a "G. I. trim."

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," Walt Disney's great full-length animated feature, plays a return engagement at the State theater today and tomorrow. The story, which provides humor, pathos, excitement, and suspense, concerns the wicked queen, whose jealous efforts to bewitch the pretty princess are thwarted by Snow White's loyal friends the dwarfs, aided by the birds and animals of the great forest.

This technicolor production with its unusual sound effects, beautiful music, and clever drawings displays all the artistry of the Disney crew.

Continuing at the Grand theater today and tomorrow is "Detective Kitty O'Day," with Jean Parker sharing the double bill with Charles Starrett in "Sundown Valley."

Bodies of Jap Marines Still Rotting On Tarawa

BETIO ISLAND, Tarawa—Bones of Imperial Japanese marines still mingle with the rusting wreckage of amphibious tanks and landing craft on the sands of Tarawa where American Marines fought one of the bloodiest battles of the Pacific last November.

Most of the Japanese were buried, but visitors on the beaches still sniff up occasional ribs, hips, and thighs.

Enrollment of civilian students in universities and colleges has dropped 44 per cent since 1939, the U. S. Office of Education reports.

DEATHS

WALTER W. BALFOUR

Walter W. Balfour, 42, a farmer, of R. D. 1, Beloit, died at his home at 8:10 p. m. Thursday after five years' illness.

Born March 17, 1902, he was the son of James and Eliza Balfour. He was a graduate of Damascus High school, Salem Business college and a member of the Westville Christian church.

He is survived by his wife, Ruth S.; his parents; a daughter, Mary Lou, and a son, Howard W., both at home.

Funeral service will be held at the Westville Christian church at 2 p. m. Sunday in charge of Rev. Rue Burnell. Burial will be in the Mount Union cemetery, Alliance.

Friends may call at the Myers funeral home in Alliance from 7 to 9 p. m. Saturday.

MISS MARY ELLEN STRATTON

Relatives have received word that Miss Mary Ellen Stratton, 82, formerly of Winona, died Tuesday at the home of her sister, Dr. Sina Stratton Mitchner of Drexel Hill, Pa.

She was born in Winona where she spent her early life. Several nieces and nephews also survive.

Funeral service was held today at Drexel Hill.

EVANS FUNERAL

Funeral service for Fred Evans, 48, who was killed in a traffic accident near Pittsburgh, was held this afternoon at the Wick Fry funeral home in Columbiana.

Mr. Evans, whose home was on the Columbiana-Fairfield rd., was born in England Sept. 27, 1895, and in 1920 was united in marriage with Miss Bessie Gotthardt at New Waterford. He was a veteran of World War I.

He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Marian Pittman of Columbiana; four sons, William L., stationed with the Navy at Pearl Harbor; Fred, Jr., with the Army in England; Price E. and Roy G. of Columbiana; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Evans of East Palestine; two brothers, Harold of Leontia and Thomas of Columbiana; and four sisters, Mrs. John Hawkes, Mrs. John Harding and Mrs. Paul Brahney of East Palestine, and Mrs. John Duff of Darlington, Pa.

Freedom of Press Committee Named

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT, June 23.—Terming freedom of the press throughout the world a means of preserving the future peace, John S. Knight, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, today appointed a committee of 13 editors whose objectives will be to establish the principle in future national and international agreements.

"The people do not desire war and all peoples would discourage it if the real causes or motives for war were exposed through the daily publication of news free from the influence of self interest," said Knight, publisher of the Detroit Free Press, the Akron Beacon-Journal and the Miami Herald.

First action of the committee, Knight said, would be to seek adoption of freedom of the press resolutions by the Republican and Democratic national political conventions.

Members of the committee are: Ralph E. McGill, Atlanta Constitution, chairman; Carl W. Ackerman, graduate school of journalism, Columbia university, vice chairman; Palmer Hoyt, Portland Oregonian; Laurence L. Winship, Boston Globe; Ralph Coghlan, St. Louis Post Dispatch; Raymond McCaw, New York Times; Paul Scott Wower, Chicago Daily News; Nelson D. Poynter, St. Petersburg Times; Carl D. Groat, Cincinnati Post; Sevelton Brown, Providence Journal Bulletin; James E. Chappell, Birmingham News and Age Herald; Gardner Cowles, Jr., Des Moines Register and Tribune; and John H. Sorrells, Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Cleveland's Hospital Facilities Inadequate

CLEVELAND, June 23.—Results of a questionnaire issued by the Academy of Medicine of Cleveland disclose that Cuyahoga county physicians have been unable to obtain hospital beds for acutely ill patients in 1,526 medical cases and 563 surgical cases.

The report, released by Dr. D. M. Keating, academy director, stated that in the opinion of some physicians deaths have resulted from inability to obtain hospital beds.

U. S. BOMBERS

greatest days of aerial operations since the launching of the Normandy invasion. Seven bombers were missing from the assault on these key rail points, both about 80 miles northeast of Paris. The yards are in the network of lines leading toward the battlefield from Germany and the lowlands.

British light bombers hit rail targets at Lsieux, Dreux and Evreux last night while fighters and intruders destroyed seven German planes over Northern France.

The night blows came after at least 6,000 Allied planes dumped probably more than 8,000 tons of bombs on targets from embattled Cherbourg to Paris from dawn to dusk yesterday. More than 6,000 sorties (individual plane flights) were made.

The aerial assault yesterday supported at pistol range the advance of ground troops at Cherbourg. Coordinated blows were struck at German headquarters, forest-hidden fuel dumps, railroad and highway traffic as far inland as Paris, and at the Germans' rocket-hurling bases in the Pas-De-Calais.

The big British Lancasters and Halifaxes took up the assault as darkness brought the Germans the only period around the clock that they now dare move forces in any considerable amount.

British Mosquitos also made an attack on Hamburg last night, the Air ministry announced.

With reports on some missions still unannounced, it was disclosed 23 Allied planes, including 11 heavy bombers and two mediums, were lost and six German planes were shot down.

Lauds Newsboys Sales Of War Savings Stamps

ST. LOUIS, June 23.—The International Circulation Managers association was told yesterday that newspaper boys sold 1,174,267,407 ten-cent War Savings stamps from Pearl Harbor to last June 8.

Howard W. Stodghill, chairman of the War Finance committee's newspaper advisory committee, said Pennsylvania led the states, with New York, second, and Ohio, third.

Ohio Air Ace Gets Wright Field Job

(By Associated Press)

DAYTON, June 23.—Capt. Don S. Gentile, Piqua ace, has been attached temporarily to the Materiel Flight command at Wright field, where he is flying the new jet-propulsion army plane, it was disclosed last night.

Gentile, who destroyed 30 Nazi planes in Europe as a pilot in the Mustang fighter escort group, has been piloting jet planes for "several days," said Col. F. W. Warburton, chief of the Flight command section at Wright field. Gentile came home on 30-day leave after fighting over Europe for three years, first with the Canadian air force and then with the U. S. Army Air Force, to which he was transferred when this country entered the war.

Col. Warburton said there was no indication how long Gentile would be at Wright field. By the time he receives new orders the flier will have become "well acquainted" with all phases of the new craft, his commanding officer said.

Gentile has not been flying the new plane only. He has been taking up other fighter planes and giving them a try-out. He has been flying the Thunderbolt, for one, which he seems to like very much, officers reported.

REPORTERS

Aslito (now operating in American hands). They moved up out of canefields in squad rushes, in leaping fashion.

As advance groups started down into the shallow valley below, heavy machinegun and mortar fire was turned against them.

"When a mortar shell landed about 15 feet from me I hit the ground so hard I jarred myself," a sergeant remarked. "Then I dug, brother, with my hands."

There were six or seven enemy pillboxes about 100 yards away, said an infantryman.

"But we didn't see them right off," he added. "Those Japs ploughed into us with machineguns from those pillboxes, which were just little mounds of concrete covered with cane and dirt. I think their mortars were behind those pillboxes. Anyway, they pinned us down."

American machineguns opened up on the pillboxes to cover the advance of a small group of combat engineers. Bazooka shells whizzed against the earth mounds. Men pulled out rifle grenades. They forced the Japanese to stay away from the narrow pillbox vents. One man, a charge of dynamite under his arm, dashed toward a pillbox. A few yards from the objective he was blown high into the air. The rest of the group was pinned down as another salvo of mortar shells dropped near them.

A staff sergeant rushed forward, finally, to a good firing position. He launched four rifle grenades. Two of them hit the pillbox. As he moved on against another pillbox a second sergeant tossed three grenades through a firing slit.

A technical sergeant led the platoon in the battle's final phase when its officers were incapacitated. He directed his men in building a line of fire and giving the wounded a chance to be evacuated. Then he pulled the men back in an orderly withdrawal from its untenable position.

The American line was pulled in temporarily—but only temporarily. Finally the pillboxes were eliminated and the battle was won.

Mussolini Ill Again

CHIASO, Switzerland, June 23.—Frontier reports considered reliable said today that Mussolini again had suffered a relapse and had summoned his son Vittorio from Germany and his wife to keep a vigil beside his bed.

The deposed Italian dictator is reported living at Garda lake. He is expected to be taken to Germany should the Nazis withdraw to the Alps.

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN

©1943 LITTLE BROWN & CO. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE

Ellery Queen, author-detective, arrived incognito in Wrightsville, which is humming with war industries. Under the name, "Ellery Smith," Queen tried to rent a furnished house or apartment through J. C. Pettigrew, real estate man. "J. C." says that war-time housing makes that almost impossible. "Smith" has just told "J. C." that "I'm a writer."

CHAPTER TWO
"Well, well," beamed J. C. "I'm real honored to meet you, Mr. Smith. Now that's funny," said J. C. "I'm a reading man myself, but I just don't seem to recollect an author named—what did you say your first name was, Mr. Smith?"
"I didn't say, but it's Ellery. Ellery Smith. I write under a pen name."
"Ah! Name of . . . ?" But when Mr. Pettigrew saw that Mr. "Smith" simply kept smiling, he rubbed his jaw and said: "Course you'd give references?"
"Would three months' rent in advance give me a good character, Mr. Pettigrew?"
"Well, I should smile!" beamed J. C. "You come with me. I've got exactly the house you're looking for."

"What did you mean by asking me if I'm superstitious?" asked Ellery as they climbed into J. C.'s coupe and drove off. "Is the house haunted?"
"Uh . . . no," said J. C. "Though there is a sort of a queer yarn connected with that house—might give you an idea for one of your, now, books, hey?" Mr. "Smith" agreed; it might. "This house, it's next door to John F.'s own place on the Hill. John F. Wright, that is. He's president of the Wrightsville National Oldest family in town."

"Well, sir, three years ago one of John F.'s three daughters—the middle one, Nora—Nora got herself engaged to this Jim Haight. Jim was head cashier at John F.'s bank. Wasn't a local boy—he'd come to Wrightsville from New York a couple of years before with fine recommendations. Started out assistant teller, and was making good. Steady boy, Jim; went to the library a lot, didn't have much fun. I spoke—a movie now and then, or standing around band concert nights with the rest of the boys, watching the girls parade up and down eating popcorn, and joshing 'em. Worked hard—plenty of up-and-go. Say, I never saw a lad stand on his two feet like Jim did. We all liked him a heap."

Mr. Pettigrew sighed, and Ellery wondered why such a glowing subject should depress him.
"I take it," Miss Nora Wright liked him more than anyone," said Ellery, to grease the wheels of the story.

"That's a fact," muttered J. C. "Wild about the boy, Nora'd been the quiet kind before Jim came along—has to wear specs, and I guess it made her think she wasn't attractive to boys, 'cause she used to sit in the house while Lola and Patty went out with fellows—reading or sewing or helping her ma with organization work."

"Well, sir, Jim changed all that. Jim wasn't the kind to be stopped by eyeglasses. Nora's a pretty girl, and Jim started to rush her, and she changed . . . my, she changed!"
J. C. frowned. "Spose I'm blabbing too much. Anyway, you get the idea. When Jim and Nora got engaged, the town said it was a fine match, especially after what had happened to John's oldest daughter, Lola."

Ellery said quickly: "And what was that, Mr. Pettigrew?"
"Why, Mr. Lola, she'd run away from home. Elope with an actor from a visiting stock company. After a while she came back home to Wrightsville. Divorced." J. C. set his lips stubbornly, and Mr. Queen realized he wasn't going to hear any more about Miss Lola Wright from him.

"Well, anyway," continued J. C., "John and Hermione Wright decided to give Jim and their Nora a furnished house for a wedding present. John cut off part of his property and built right next door, 'cause Hermie wanted Nora as close by as possible, seeing she'd . . . lost one of her girls already."

Nora Wright just shut herself up in her bedroom and wouldn't come out.

"Lola," nodded Mr. Queen. "Divorced, you said? Then Lola Wright doesn't live with her father and mother any more?"
"No," said J. C. shortly. "So John built Jim and Nora a sweet little six-roomer next door. Hermione was putting in rugs and furniture—the works—when all of a sudden it happened."

"What happened?"
"To tell the truth, Mr. Smith, nobody knows," replied the real-estate man. "Nobody excepting Nora Wright and Jim Haight. It was the day before the wedding, when Jim Haight ups and leaves town! Ran away. That was three years ago. He's not been back since."

They were on a winding, rising road. Ellery saw wide old houses on voluptuous lawns, and elms, maples, cypress, and weeping willows taller than the houses.
Mr. Pettigrew scowled. "The next morning John F. found a note of resignation on his desk at the bank, but not a word as to why Jim'd skipped town. And Nora wouldn't say a blessed word. Just shut herself up in her bedroom and wouldn't come out for her father or mother or sister Patricia or even old Luddie, the hired girl who brought the three Wright girls up. Nora just kept bawling in her room. My daughter Carmel and Patty Wright are thick as molasses, and Pat told Carmel the whole thing. Pat did a heap of crying herself that day. I guess they all did."

"And the house?" murmured Mr. Queen.

"Well, sir, Jim changed all that. Jim wasn't the kind to be stopped by eyeglasses. Nora's a pretty girl, and Jim started to rush her, and she changed . . . my, she changed!"
J. C. frowned. "Spose I'm blabbing too much. Anyway, you get the idea. When Jim and Nora got engaged, the town said it was a fine match, especially after what had happened to John's oldest daughter, Lola."

Ellery said quickly: "And what was that, Mr. Pettigrew?"
"Why, Mr. Lola, she'd run away from home. Elope with an actor from a visiting stock company. After a while she came back home to Wrightsville. Divorced." J. C. set his lips stubbornly, and Mr. Queen realized he wasn't going to hear any more about Miss Lola Wright from him.

to Hermione. Hermy let out that Nora'd jilted Jim. But people did keep jawing about it, and after a while . . . Mr. Pettigrew paused.
"Yes?" prompted Ellery.
"After a while people began saying Nora'd gone . . . crazy and that that little six-roomer was jinxed."
"Jinxed!"
J. C. smiled a sickly smile. "Funny how some folks are, isn't it? Thinking the house had anything to do with Jim and Nora's breaking up! And there ain't nothing wrong with Nora, she's not crazy. Crazy!"
J. C. snorted. "That wasn't the whole of it. When it looked like Jim wasn't coming back, John F. decided to sell that house he'd built for his daughter. Pretty soon along came a buyer—relative of Judge Martin's wife Clarice, man named Hunter of the Boston branch of the family. I was handling the deal."

J. C. lowered his voice. "I'd taken this Mr. Hunter over to the house for a last inspection before signing the papers. We were looking around the living room and Mr. Hunter was saying, 'I don't like the sofa just there, when he gets a kind of a scared look all of a sudden and falls down right in front of me! Died on the spot! I didn't sleep for a week.' He swabbed his forehead."

Plans Completed For Salem Polo Club Horse Show July 4

Event Slated For County Fairgrounds; Committees Judge Named By Chairmen

Salem riding enthusiasts and horse lovers are promised an outstanding event on the county fairgrounds through the combined efforts of the Salem Polo Club and the Pine Hollow Riding academy.

Plans have been completed, committees named and an outstanding judge engaged for the affair—the fourth annual Salem Polo Club horse show—which is being held in Lisbon this season because proper facilities are not available locally.

Chosen as judge this year is Harry Fitzpatrick, well-known Cleveland poloist and horseman, who served in a similar capacity here several years ago. The Cleveland played with the famous Hunting Valley polo club in top-notch polo circles and is rated as one of the best malleters in this district.

Chairman Walter Fernengel and E. L. Grate have completed their preliminary arrangements for the show and have appointed their committees to assist in the operations on the holiday.

Canfield Band To Play
Picked for the musical portion of the show is the Canfield band, a summer organization that draws its membership from the high school band in that community.

Entries this year are in charge of John Doyle and Tom Moore and reports from them indicate one of the largest shows ever staged in this section. Horses and riders have been entered from Columbiana, Trumbull, Stark and Mahoning counties with prospects for many more participants before the deadline.

Complete committees named by Fernengel and Grate are as follows: Publicity, Ralph Phillips, Jack Gallatin, Tom Moore, Don Beattie; program, Pete Votaw, Jack Hendricks, Alf Fultz, Bruce Carey; finance, Will Smith, Grate, Fernengel; tickets, Franklin Smith, Moore, Ray Moff; parking, Wally Duncan, Don Sullivan, Roy Lipplatt; judge, Harry Fitzpatrick; gate, Herb Kent, Kenny Holwick, I. G. Tice; events, Fultz, Duncan, Votaw and Hendricks; entries, Doyle and Moore.

The complete list of events on the program is as follows:

OLD TIMERS LOSE TO SHEENS, CHINA EDGES PAXSONS

Recs Pile Up Nine Errors As Potters Win Nine-Inning Contest

Class A softball gave fans two thrillers yesterday at Centennial park as the improving Sheens aggregation knocked off the Recreation, 4-3, in the upset of the day and the China skinned through another win in two extra innings over Paxsons 3-2, after trailing for most of the contest.

The win by Sheens over the Recreation places the High schoolers in a two-way tie for third place, as both opponents now have won three and lost two games this round. Demings remain in second place with three wins and a loss and the China, by virtue of another victory, stays on top with five straight wins.

In spite of the fact that Dale Ritchie held them to one hit, the Paxson crew topped him for two big runs in their half of the first. They maintained that lead until the last of the seventh, when the potters pushed across two runs to tie things up and force the game into extra innings. In the ninth Ritchie crossed the plate to win his own game.

In the upset, Sheens came through with three markers in the sixth to pull the game out of the fire. Until that inning the Recreation had led by virtue of a run in each of the first, third and fifth innings, while Sheens had scored only once in the second.

Hurder Francis Lanney allowed four Old Timers hits as Ralph Gregg was being nipped by the opposition for six. The Recs had the bad night of the season, committing nine errors—the most in a game this year.

NEW YORK, June 23.—With summer football practice due to start within a few weeks at a lot of colleges, reports have trickled in here from the South that: (1) Shorty McWilliams, the Meridian, Miss., high school sensation, will play for Mississippi state, not Army, which was hot after him; (2) Georgia, which was fined $500 for using transfer players last fall, won't be in danger again. Wally Butts has done such a good job the Bulldogs will have a "B" varsity playing a separate schedule; (3) Alabama got that 250-pound prospect Auburn wanted so badly and has plenty of others to go with him; (4) Clemson, V.M.I. and Tulane also have done right well collecting material.

OBSERVATION POST
The summer figure skating season is under way at Lake Placid, N. Y., and St. Paul has scheduled a curling bonspiel for July 1-4. And why not? It will be another month before the distillers can make it worth while to put the ice in glasses.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE
Frank Shimek, who was quite a basketballer at Iowa U. 20-odd years ago, rolled several better-than-600 bowling scores last winter at Burlington, Ia., where he's working at the Iowa Ordnance plant. And he recently took time off for golf and shot a snappy 66. . . Bill Doak, the old-time Cards' pitcher, missed a 1922 by failing to cover first base on an infield tape. . . Luke Johnson, who says it takes two years for a quarterback to master the "T" formation, will have just two weeks between the time the Bears open camp and the Chicago All-Star game, and he hasn't yet sighted a quarterback. . . Apprentice Seaman Leigh Woehling, Penn State's 1944 swimming captain, recently won the all-college title in cattle judging.

TRIBE PREPARES FOR THREE-GAME SERIES WITH SOX

Al Smith Picked by Boudreau to Start Series Against Thornton Lee

CHICAGO, June 23.—Determined to prevent a duplication of last week-end's performance, when the Chicago White Sox swept a three-game series from the Cleveland Indians, Manager Lou Boudreau plans to use his four best hurlers in the four-game series opening tonight. Southpaw Al Smith, who defeated the Pale Hose five times last year but has dropped three decisions to them this season, will twirl the opener against Thornton (Lefty) Lee.

Allie Reynolds, Mel Harder and Ed Klieban, recently promoted to starting duty, will draw assignments for the other three contests. The Indians muffed an opportunity to climb out of the American league basement yesterday when they lost the final game of the series to the Detroit Tigers 4 to 3. Vernon Kennedy had one of his better pitching days but the Tribe offset his creditable slab work with a display of erratic fielding.

Fish and Game Group To Meet Here July 10

A meeting of the Columbiana County Fish and Game Protective association will be held at the Saxon hall on railroad st at 8 p. m. July 10, officials announced today.

Several well-known speakers are being secured for the occasion and the program will also include music, motion pictures and a lunch.

Sportsmen from all over Columbiana county have indicated their intentions of attending and officials of the organization extend an invitation to the general public.

N. Carolina's Venereal Disease Institute Works Toward Control Through Education

AP Features
CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Can the problem of "VD"—venereal disease — be licked?

North Carolina, a pioneer state in "VD" control, thinks it can. Medically, venereal disease no longer is a problem. With new drugs and new technique, once untreatable "social diseases" often can be cured in rapid treatment centers within hours and days instead of the months and years required before.

North Carolina views these as the real problems:

How can the cases be reached, poverty, ignorance, fear and prudery being what they are? Just what plan will do for syphilis what informed public opinion has done for such diseases as tuberculosis and smallpox?

In search of the answers is the VD Educational Institute in Raleigh, a unique laboratory or idea factory where experts are at work. Control methods suggested and applied continuously are being weeded-out and study steadily is advanced.

Shocking Picture
World war II has brought before the institute a shocking picture. Selective Service physical examinations for the first two million men drafted showed an average of 47.7 in every 1,000 were syphilitic. Averages in some states rank as high as 160 in 1,000.

The armed forces, federal and state governments and many municipalities have stepped up efforts to beat "VD". But unlike many other agencies the institute is not attempting a medical campaign. Instead, it aims to replace public ignorance and indifference with understanding and enlightenment.

Being mass produced are illustrated posters, booklets, pamphlets and other material including slides and strip film sequence. Movies, typed for variable audience appeal, also are planned.

Tons of material as kept by the institute as exhibits of what has not worked in the past.

Army posts have ordered thousands of the institute posters. Much material also is translated and sent into Latin American and other neighboring countries.

Rural Vance county in North Carolina now is being used as a laboratory to answer the question

FROM BEACHHEAD TO SIEGE

HOW REMARKABLE has been the Allied progress from the beachheads established June 6 on the Normandy coast, indicated by arrows (1), to the siege of Cherbourg (2) is indicated by this map. Most important landing point in the campaign to cut off the Peninsula was made at left above Isigny. Black area shows how the beachhead was expanded. Black lines show where U. S. forces crossed and how general battle area extends, with Le Haye and St. Lo as key targets. (International)

British Designers Hope Elizabeth Sets Styles

LONDON — The British dress trade hopes that Princess Elizabeth will make the court a rallying point of postwar fashion and stimulate London to become a style center. Now that the Princess making public appearances, the trade hopes she will replace the Duchess of Kent as style leader. "Before the war," a well-known designer told the United Press "everything the Duchess wore was widely copied. But since the death of the Duke she makes few public appearances, and most of these are in uniform."

Queen Elizabeth, despite Norman Hartnell creations, is not regarded by the trade as a style-setter. However, they point out, the British people do not particularly want their queens to have "snaps."
